This article will be featured in the January 8 edition of the Baptist and Reflector for Sanctity of Life Sunday.

I do not remember who said it, but I was permanently impacted by the thought that every Christian must decide to live a life of either self-preservation or self-sacrifice. The first option looks like the world, and the second one looks like Jesus. My whole life has been spent in an America that chases hard after unrestrained individualism. Ideas that would have been considered shameful or at least hidden from the public eye in previous generations are now celebrated in the streets and normalized through the media. The expressive individualism of the modern age lives by a mantra that says, "I can live however I want to live and no one can tell me I'm wrong!"

This mindset reserves unlimited freedom for self and everyone in agreement, but quickly denies the same freedom to anyone who disagrees. If you follow this thinking to its logical conclusion, you will stop at nothing, including murder, to get what you think you deserve.

When God gave the law to Moses, He included specific instructions for the most vulnerable people in the land, including foreigners, widows, orphans, and the poor. He reminded the Israelites that they were strangers in Egypt, implying that they should have empathy for people without the provisions of their homeland. Have you ever wondered why God brings foreigners to America? We do not know all the details, but we do know that God calls us to show kindness and share the gospel.

The Joy of Renewal

by Anna Huggins

There is a quietness in nature as snow is falling, that brings to my mind Psalm 46:10 (ESV), "Be still and know that I am God". The clean, freshness of snow paints a beautiful picture of God's work of salvation in our lives.

Sanctity of Life Sunday will be January 19, 2025

While we do not want outsiders (or insiders) to break our laws or further paganize our culture, we do want them to worship Jesus. Whether they come for a short visit or stay for a lifetime, we should seek to have as much gospel impact as possible on people coming from other countries. You do not have to support illegal immigration to believe that God brought them here for a life-transforming purpose and that you should play a part in that process.

Abortion was legalized in the United States just under eight months before I was born. Had my parents not feared the Lord, I could have been a “family planning” statistic.

Although Roe v. Wade was overturned, many activists are doubling down on the right to abortion at any stage in the name of women’s healthcare.

Any honest and discerning person knows that this debate has nothing to do with healthcare. In fact, abortion often does far more to harm the mother than giving birth does. This deceptive narrative is a poor attempt to cover the reality of premeditated murder. Have you ever wondered why our culture is so obsessed with abortion? I think the answer comes down to a few words: responsibility, inconvenience, embarrassment, and pain. The first three are pretty self-explanatory, but what about pain? I cannot imagine the pain connected to rape, incest, or genetic abnormality, but I know the character of our God! Not only does abortion not make these trials magically go away, but it also robs God of the glory He receives in the midst of pain. He can write a powerful ending to a shameful start. He can also conform us to the image of His Son by way of dark valleys we would never seek.

The Joy of Renewal, cont'd.

As the new year leads us to think of new beginnings, or renewing of goals and tasks, we should also take a look at where our lives align with God's plan. To begin, Psalm 51 is a helpful guide.

Take a look at verses seven, ten, and twelve (ESV): "Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow....Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me....Restore unto me the joy of your salvation, and uphold me with a willing spirit."

After the busyness of the Christmas season, it is easy to be overwhelmed. How do we accomplish all that needs to be done? What about the struggle a loved one is facing, how can we help? Or with our own sickness and despair, where is the Lord? "So we do not lose heart. Though our outer self is wasting away, our inner nature is being renewed day by day." 2 Corinthians 4:16 (ESV).

We are not left alone to face what life brings, and can know Jesus better through the living of our days. In John 15, Jesus speaks of abiding in his love, the reason he has come. "These things have I spoken to you that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be full," (verse 11, ESV).

As a young adult, the last of Colossians 1:27 (ESV) helped explain my relationship to Jesus, which is "Christ in you, the hope of glory." This has made a difference in guiding me to press on, to be true, and faithful, for the Lord is within me.

This verse follows Paul speaking of his sufferings, yet he continued in sharing the Word of God. He also speaks to our purpose and task, to make known the mystery of Christ, and the riches of his glory. The joy we celebrate of Jesus Christ at Christmas, is the Good News for all people. He came to be our salvation. In the stillness of knowing God, Psalm 46:10 continues, "I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in all the earth!" In this new year, let the Lord restore the joy of your salvation, and be a willing spirit to fulfill the task of sharing his joy! Blessings,
Anna Huggins
